U. S. EXPECTED

NEED CONSENT OF SENATE

Faith in American Word Endangered by Constant Disavowals of Upper House

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1925, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington — Europe's insistence that the United States has incurred at least a moral obligation to help collect debts due from Germany, contrasted with the emphatic disclaimer

by Secretary Hughes that any obligation whatsoever was undertaken, may lead to a definition once more for the benefit of the outside world of what is necessary before America can be committed to a policy of alliance or partnership with any power.

When the Versailles treaty was signed by the president of the United States and the American peace mission, Europe promptly assumed that ratification by the senate was a routine formality. Again an agreement has been signed by ambassadors representing the United States government and Europe is reading into that agreement obligations and implications which do not square with the American system of government. In order for any obligation of the weight of a treaty to be incurred, the senate of the United States must be a participant. The particular agreement signed in Paris last week is regarded as simply a recognition of American claims arising out of the action of the United States taken by congress and the executive in pre-claiming a state of war against Germany. Anything further requiring force of coercion of any kind to collect debts would need the consent of congress.

GET SENATE ADVICE

President Harding used to take the position that even though an exchange of notes or conviction did not require the consent of the senate he would not hesitate to send any document to that body so as to avoid controversy or misundestandings.

President Coolidge has thus far accepted the view of Secretary Hughes that the Paris agreement needs no ratification by the senate because it is merely an adjustment of claims in pursuance of authority already given.

There have been times when some governments in Europe have hinted that an agreement with the United States should be made also with the senate and there is every likelihood that the dispute will be revived in view of the fact that so many members are inclined to look askance at the Paris agreement. All the moral effect of having America's signature on the Paris pact will be lost to Europe if America continues to come from the senate.

PLAN IS DIFFERENT

The conflict of viewpoint between

Europe and the United States however is not surprising for it has happened before. Under the parliamentary system of government abroad when the executive ministers sign a treaty the assumption is they have the backing of a majority of their legislative bodies or else a majority when Congress without so much as giving notice to Tokyo went ahead of its own initiative and enacted legislation in contradiction of the Root

Takahira agreement. There have been statements in the Japanese press that the exchange of notes between Japan and the United States amounted to a

"moral obligation."

It is a point that never has been settled because the American form of government differs from that of the other principal powers. Agreements and conventions and exchanges of notes made by the chief executive through the secretary of state are not permanently binding upon the United States government however binding

they may be on the other governments.

SENATOR IGNORES

Begin Trial of Policeman

Jersey City, N. J.—Announcement that Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey would not appear as a witness in the trial of ten Weehawken police and ten civilians on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws was made at the resumption of the trial in county court Wednesday. George R. Outley

of defense counsel Tuesday invited

Senator Edwards to appear after two prohibition agents had accused the senator of being the backer of the defendants on trial.

With the non appearance of Senator Edwards, summations in the trial were expected to start Wednesday afternoon.

Lionel Wilson, one of the three

New York prohibition agents who

Tuesday accused Senator Edwards of having accepted $2,800 in a projected bootlegging deal, was called to the stand for further cross examination and admitted that he had been convinced of petty larceny in a New York court several years ago. The conviction was based on the charge that he had rifled coin boxes of the New York Telephone Co by which he was employed. He was dismissed from his position as a result of the conviction, he said.

Washington—Secretary Hughes was called upon Wednesday by the senate for a copy of the Paris reparations agreement, together with such information concerning the circumstances surrounding the negotiations

"as may be necessary to full understanding of its terms."

A resolution of inquiry by Senator

Johnson, Republican, of California, one of the senate irreconcilables, was adopted without discussion.

The proposal was approved and broadened by the foreign relations committee just before the senate met.

The committee added an amendment asking that this be accompanied by a report regarding the negotiations at Paris in which Ambassador

Kellogg, the secretary of state designate, and Herrick and John A. Logan participated as representatives of the United States.

Pending receipt of the report from

Mr. Hughes no further action is contemplated by the senate. The irreconcilables said they simply wanted the facts so they could determine for themselves whether they concur in the views of Mr. Hughes.

When advised of the senate's action

Mr. Hughes declined to discuss it. In other quarters however, it was suggested that the language of the request was so sweeping that it might be interpreted to include files which the department would not care to open. The impression gained headway that the secretary would take full advantage of the clause "if not inconsistent with the public interest."

COUNTY GETS $140,000 U. S. AID FOR HIGHWAYS

FEDERAL AID ALLOTTED FOR WORK IN 1927

Highway Commission Has Not Determined How County's Share Will Be Spent

Outagamie co. has been allotted $140,000 in federal aid money to be spent on federal aid projects in the county in 1927. The project has not yet been located. Little light could be shed by the highway office upon the possible location of the construction work. Hints had been given out by state highway officials that money might be forthcoming to aid in the paving of Cherry-st south of the bridge.

Money previously allotted for widening of highway 15 east of Kaukauna and relocating McCarty's crossing has not been spent. The widening of the concrete has been completed, but the relocation of the crossing still waits. The plan of erecting a viaduct over the railroad tracks was abandoned at least temporarily in favor of a better grade crossing.

At a meeting of the state highway commission recently the commission appropriated more than $3,000,000 from the federal aid fund to be spent in 1926 and 1927. Although the total number of projects approved by the commission aggregates approximately $14,000,000, a considerable share amounting to over $6,000,000 had been allotted before Dec. 31, 1924. The amounts recommended are $2,235,100 for 1925, $8,725,000 for 1926 and $2,235,000 for 1927.

Outagamie co. received an allotment of $50,000 for a project in 1926 to be located later. Calumet co. was allotted $80,000 for 1926 for as much concrete construction as the funds will build on the Plymouth-Chilton rd. Shawano co. was given $80,000 for 1925, the construction to be 11 miles of gravel on the Shawano-Anthon rd. through the Menominee Indian reservation. The county also will receive $100,000 for 1925 for improvement of the Shawano-Bondus rd. The sum of $80,000 has been allotted to widen three miles of highway 15 between Oshkosh and Fond du Lac.

PREPARE TEXTBOOK FOR PLUMBER CLASS

Itinerant Teacher Will Have Standard Course of Study

A new standard text book and course of training for apprentice plumbers is being prepared for the Fox River valley plumbing school which will be conducted by an itinerant instructor, Frederick Maeder of Altoona, Pa. Mr. Maeder will handle the course in vocational schools of the valley, teaching for a certain period.

The new text book is divided into ten groups: Plumbing installation, maintenance and repair, care and use of tools, plumbing codes, arithmetic, plan reading, science, progress of sanitation, the apprentice and his opportunity and the apprentice as a team-worker. Under the head of plumbing installation comes drainage and ventilation work, simple installations, advanced installations, piping jobs and lead work. Maintenance and repair includes finding and removing stoppages, faucet and valve repairs, heater and range boiler repairs, gas repairs, lead repairs, and miscellaneous work. Care and use of tools includes general tools, lead tools and the repair kit. The plumbing code is framed to suit local conditions. Arithmetic consists of use of tables, areas, volumes, offsets, costs, short cuts in addition, multiplication, division and subtraction, fractions, decimals and a handbook of tables. Plan reading consists of sketching, plan reading, and emergency drawing. Science includes the plumber and disease, corrosion, soils and solutions, plumbing materials, friction, water and its properties, gasoline and kerosene, and air and its properties. The progress of sanitation takes in history of plumbing, sanitation and the city and using the trade papers.

SMALL CHANCE FOR REPEAL OF STATE PROHIBITION LAW

By Associated Press

Madison—There is apparently little prospect that the Severson dry law will be repealed at this session of the legislature. While a fight may be waged in the assembly to repeal it, those who have taken an informal poll of the membership declare that there is not enough strength in votes for repeal in the assembly to accomplish the purpose sought.

In the senate the drys have the upper hand and a bill to repeal, if one is introduced there by the socialist delegation, as is the prospect, has virtually no chance.

Many of the wets in the assembly also would vote against the repeal of the Severson law. It has been determined by the poll. While wets may favor modification of the federal dry law, a large number of wet assembly hold to the opinion that repeal of the state dry law would serve no good purpose at this time and so will vote against the house bill when it comes up for vote in the assembly.

CUT $12,000,000 OFF ESTIMATES OF STATE EXPENSES

Blaine Declares Budget Committee Has Effectuated Big Economies

Madison—Economy guided the Wisconsin board of public affairs in its budget recommendations prepared for the legislature now in session, according to a statement issued today by Governor John J. Blaine, chairman. Under the general summary of expenditures the board recommended for the 1925-1927 biennium, more than $12,000,000 less than the requests made, the governor stated.

The board in its recommendations is opposed to any increase in taxes and "holds that this is not the time for expansion of the activities," said the brief analysis of "the budget by Governor Blaine. The board says 'it believes that rigid economy should be practiced in the state government and that no new financial burdens be put upon the taxpayers of the state'."

Among the reductions over last biennium recommended for the biennium, for operation, are the following: Department of agriculture, $12,000; engineering department, $10,000; geological and natural history survey (cut from $110,000 to $80,000); $60,000; highway commission, $48,000; marketing division, $18,000; Wisconsin national guard, $20,000; railroad commission, $10,000; and University of Wisconsin, $600,000.

The budget also recommends the repeal of more than $500,000 in unexpended balances for the university.

The only substantial increase recommended in operation for the biennium are: Superintendent of public instruction, $10,000; eradication of bovine tuberculosis, $200,000; penal and charitable institutions, largely food and clothing, $275,000; normal schools, about $130,000. The amount recommended for the normal schools is approximately the amount recommended in the finance bill of the 1923 legislature, it was stated.

Would Prohibit "Clocking" Of Postal Workers

The practice of testing the efficiency of postal employees by means of mechanical devices will be outlawed, if a bill introduced by Congressman George J. Schneider of Appleton passes in congress.

Mr. Schneider's bill would make it illegal for any postal supervisory official or bureau chief to permit use of a stop watch or other device to make a time study of the work of any employee. It also would prohibit the means of determining his efficiency. The bill, which has been referred to the committee on postoffices and post roads, further provides that it shall be illegal for postal officials, inspectors or any other agents to "use any means or methods with the intent or purpose to intimidate or coerce any postal employee from exercising his legal and constitutional rights."

KNOCKS 'EM OUT QUICK Toughest of Old Hang On Coughs Go

Why send a boy to do a man's work? Sweet, sugary cough syrups may help a simple cough, but when you are traveling along towards the cemetery with a stubborn tight old cough that lingers on and on with the most persistent devilishness then you need a real cough medicine—and the real destroyer of tough old coughs is Broncholine Emulsion.

The cough may be so tantalizing that you can't sleep nights and your days may be filled with racking torture, yet that's just the kind of a cough that Broncholine likes to tackle and conquer.

Many times a few doses will stop the hacking and loosen things up and you can depend upon half a bottle to make a two months quit cold and disappear.

Life is sweet—it will be much sweeter when you get rid of that old time cough.

Ask Voigt's Drug Store, Union Pharmacy or any wide awake druggist for a bottle of Broncholine Emulsion. There is no dope in it—or chloroform, and a couple of teaspoonfuls will usually end any ordinary cough. adv.

WOULD INVEST TEACHER PENSION FUND IN FARM

Madison — Legislation permitting the state annuity board to invest more teachers retirement system funds in Wisconsin farm loans is asked in the report of the board filed with Governor Blaine.

It is the judgement of the annuity

Applications for farm loans should be made direct to the annuity board in Madison and payment of fees or commissions to obtain loans is not necessary, says the report.

What folly to suffer Colds

A cold can be checked in 24 hours. The fever and headache can be ended. Even La Grippe can be stopped in 3 days.

Millions have proved that. Your druggist guarantees it. Your own neighbors will certify it.

Then why let colds linger? They mean both discomfort and danger. Millions are wrecked by results of colds.

The right way, the best way, is with Hill's Cascara-Bromide Quinine. The result of years of research. A treatment so perfect that 25 years developed no way to improve it.

It stops a cold in a day. But it does far more. It removes the poisons caused by colds. It restores vitality to the whole system. In the quickest, surest way men know it brings one back to normal.

Millions have proved that. Your own neighbors are among them. No one who knows Hill's could ever be induced to use anything else for a cold.

Don't take chances with a cold. Get the best help men know, and the genuine. A n d start promptly. Every hour you delay makes the cold harder to cure. adv.

THE ROAD OF TRAVEL LUXURY

U. S. MUST ADHERE TO WORLD COURT, ROTARIANS TOLD

Chicago Jurist Says International Tribunal Is Success

It is extremely important and almost a necessity that the United States adhere to the World court which has achieved such brilliant success since it was established in the fall of 1921, Judge John R. McGorty of Chicago, judge of the superior court of Cook-co said at the meeting of Appleton Rotary club Tuesday noon at the Conway Hotel. Judge McGorty, who lived in this state until about 30 years ago, has served in the Illinois legislature and at one time was a candidate for governor of that state.

No one desires war, especially with all of its present day horrors, but no one can stand injustice and oppression Judge McGorty said. So nations often resort to force to gain justice despite the horrors of war even though disputes can be settled peacefully. The courts of justice settle disputes peacefully and fairly. Many arbitrations have taken place between the United States and other nations, in fact the United States is and has always been the leader in this practical method of settling international disputes, Judge McGorty declared.

HAGUE TRIBUNALS

President McKinley started the first Hague Peace conference and President Roosevelt, the second. The second Hague conference had a court in the place of an arbitration board. Where an arbitration board could handle only one controversy and was not a representative of law, every law or finding of a court set precedent, a vast improvement, according to the speaker.

The plan for the world court in 1907 failed because small nations wanted the same number of votes as the large nations in electing judges, as was their right, Judge McGorty said. The United States was strongly in favor of the court up to the World war and was a leader in the movement for a permanent court of justice after the war. In fact the plan was suggested by Elihu Root, then secretary of state, who said that each nation, big and small, should control one vote in the court. This did away with the objections of the small nations and the world court was born in September, 1921. John Bassett Moore, who had been connected with the work since the first Hague conference became one of the judges and other men eminent in international law were chosen for the remaining positions. While the League of Nations created the World court, it is independent of the league, having its own statute and charter. Its proceedings are like any other court, according to Judge McGorty.

AVERTED WARS

Two kinds of decisions, voluntary and advisory are handed down by the court. The voluntary decisions are those given for nations which have agreed to be absolutely bound by the word of the court. Other nations merely ask for the opinion of the court on international quarrels. This happened eight times between 1921 and 1923 and some of the disputes might have led to wars if they had not been submitted to the court. In every case the nation against which the decision was made accepted it thus avoiding international complications. This record shows the great efficiency and the worth of such a court to the world, Judge McGorty said.

The World court, which is functioning at the present time is truly a world court as the name implies, Judge McGorty said. It works for all nations, is adhered to by 47 of them and 21 have pledged by treaty to be bound by its decisions. It has given high-class results and its decisions are accepted every time by both disputants and regarded as final, thus establishing a precedent for the next case.

REDS RUN BUREAU OF FALSE PASSES

By Associated Press
Berlin—The Berlin police, raiding recently the rooms of two Communists in a suburb, discovered a passport forging plant conducted with great efficiency and evidently run, not to make money, but to facilitate the movements of German Communist workers.

The outfit of the two young men conducting this enterprise, who posed as architects to avert suspicion, was most complete. It consisted of chemicals to eradicate names, blank passports of various countries, cameras, and detailed records of the persons to whom false passports had been issued, or from whom legitimate passports had been obtained.

It was evident that the operations of the forgers had not extended beyond countries bordering on Germany.

NEGRO SCHOOLS SHOW SATISFACTORY RESULTS

By Associated Press
Chicago—The value of the ground, buildings, equipment and libraries in the 13 Negro schools sponsored by the department of education for Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal church has increased $2,764,953 in the last ten years, according to the board's announcement here. In 1913 the total valuation was placed at $1,396,948 and in 1923 at $4,141,000. The number of students increased in this time from 5,969 to 8,662, and the number of teachers from 358 to 469.

McHenry Medical college in Nashville is the only medical school for the education of Negro physicians, pharmacists and dentists, with a denominational affiliation, in the South.

Russian Choir Is Treat For Eyes As Well As For Ears

THE Russian Symphonic choir, which will present the second number of the Community Artists series occurs in Lawrence Memorial chapel next Friday evening will be a treat for the eyes as well as for the ears, if the picture of the choir soloists printed herewith is a criterion. The choir is made up entirely of solo singers and their voices blend wonderfully well.

The bass section of the choir is one of its big features. No country produces such basses as Russia. Whether it is the effect of the severe climate or the strong physique of the Russian peasants, it is a fact generally known that the deepest, most sonorous and richest bass-voices come from Russia. There is even a humorous story current in Russia and based on this fact. It is being told namely,—that a choir was being organized in Heaven and the angel in charge of the proceedings issued a call for singers. Hundreds of sopranos, contraltos, altos, tenors and baritones applied for the job, but only one basso-profundo, a Russian, appeared on the scene. The angel had to put up with the scarcity of basses and organized his choir of six hundred voices with only one bass in the rear ranks. When the first rehearsal was called to order, the celestial conductor gave his choir their cue and asked them to sing a note with a full voice. No sooner did the obedient singers open their mouths than the aspiring choir conductor bade them be still and shouted: "A little less bass there in the back."

That solitary Russian basso-profundo covered all the other six hundred voices of the celestial choir.

This is only a story but there is a good deal of truth in it. A Russian bass, unless he is in perfect control can drown out a whole regiment of sopranos.

PERFUME, SMOKE SPOIL TEA TASTE

By Associated Press
London—No woman who smokes cigarettes can hope to become a professional tea-taster, according to Miss Margaret Irving, the only woman among London's millions of women tea-drinkers who has qualified as a tea expert. She has taken her place alongside men who get thousands of pounds a year for grading and judging the leaves which enter into England's favorite beverage.

Women tea-tasters must also eschew perfumes and perfumed soaps and talcum powders. The nose and palate cooperate in deciding upon the flavor of tea, and must be kept free of all influences which might affect their functioning.

RADIO PROGRAMS

A recent survey made by W.T.S. Sears-Roebuck station, Chicago, shows that every third person in the country is a radio listener. Chicago stations alone have 4,600,000 regular listeners within a radius of 250 miles of the city. Sets are found in homes, places of business, hotels, clubs, news stands, candy kitchens, garages and show-rooms. Creameries, grain elevators, livestock marketing organizations etc., make use of the radio market reports regularly, many posting the reports on bulletin boards for those interested. Instrumental music is the most popular entertainment and is followed closely by vocal music, with a decided preference for male voices. Farm and home programs rank high while radio plays, readings and speeches are favored in the order named.

KOA presents Joe Mann and his Rainbow-Lane orchestra Wednesday evening. Other numbers of a fine program include tenor solos by Elwin Smith, piano solos by Mrs. Florence D. Morrison and soprano solos by Margaret Andre. WLW has a fine musical program from 8 o'clock on. Just a few features of this group are selections by the Salsky Instrumental Quartet, harp solos by Geraldine Vito, 9, youngest harpist and daughter of Joseph Vito, solo harpist of Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, selections by the Minor Electrical Instrumental Trio (violin, cello and piano), choir of La-tonia Christian church, synopsed improvisations on standard classics by Clifford Lang, pianist, and entertainment by the famous Fornica orchestra.

Two other especially fine programs for Wednesday evening take the air from WOC and WHAG. At 8 o'clock WOC will broadcast an organ recital from the J. B. Palmer residence at Davenport. Mrs. Frank W. Elliot will be the organist and she will be accompanied in several numbers by Charles Kerns, tenor. From 8:30 to 11:30 a program including many musical and dramatic stars will be presented from WHAG under the auspices of the Brooklyn Eagle. H. V. Kallenberg is featured in Topics of the Day.

HILBERT WOMAN'S HANGING BLAMED TO FAILING HEALTH

Funeral is Held for Mrs. George Platek, Who Was Found Dead in Barn

Despondency over ill health is believed to have been the reason for the suicidal death of Mrs. George Platek, 54, of Hilbert, whose funeral service took place at Chilton Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Platek prepared dinner for the family Sunday noon at the home three miles southwest of Hilbert, known as the Anheler homestead, called her husband and children to the table and then left the house. She did not return and after about half an hour search was begun.

Mrs. Platek's lifeless body was found suspended in the hayloft of the barn, where she had hung herself with a clothes line. No inquest was held.

The only cause which the family would ascribe for her act was that she had been in ill health for about three years and brooded over her condition. She is survived by her widower and two children.

STATE ECONOMY

It is announced from Madison that the state board of public affairs has reduced the budget requests of the various state departments, boards and institutions, for the next two years, by the sum of $12,000,000. This is broadcasted as the first of the economy moves of the administration. The economy in this instance, however, is more apparent than real. The amount allowed by the board does not represent a reduction of expenditures for these purposes, but, as a matter of fact, a slight increase over the present biennium. It means simply that these boards, departments and institutions ask for $12,000,000 more than they are going to get, and the $12,000,000 was an increase over present allowances.

It would be more to the point if the $68,769,898 it is proposed to spend on this part of state government were cut another ten or twelve million dollars. The politicians would throw up their hands at such a suggestion and would declare that it is utterly impossible, and that the idea itself was ridiculous. Nevertheless, there is no doubt that all of the work performed by these various departments, boards, commissions and institutions could be done, and the charitable and other service rendered to the state of Wisconsin for many millions less than it is now being done. The waste and extravagance that goes on in these branches of government are unquestionably excessive. We are paying a terrific price for politics in the state of Wisconsin. Everybody knows that that has half an eye.

In New York state they have introduced two bills in the legislature to cut the income tax by twenty-five per cent. We could do the same in the state of Wisconsin if we were to reduce our extravagant expenditures and our needless surpluses. We will effect these economies in Wisconsin when we have in executive offices men who have the courage to cut loose from politics, lay the facts on the table and demand retrenchment. We do not know when that time may come, but we will go on paying tremendous tribute to politics until it does.

BORAH IN ARMS AGAIN

The smouldering fires of discord in the Republican party over foreign policy are being fanned to flames again by the redoubtable Mr. Borah. Another schism within the party is threatened by the senator's challenge to the secretary of state to prove that the Paris financial settlement is not an "entangling" alliance. The chairman of the foreign relations committee is carrying the weight of the world on his shoulders. In his judgment the salvation of the republic is at stake unless we continue our relations with other nations as he thinks they ought to be continued. Mr. Borah is one of the few vocal survivors of the irreconcilables. Most of the others have subsided or have passed out of the picture.

Mr. Borah is an able and conscientious public servant, one of the foremost figures of the senate, but on one or two subjects which he takes execrably to heart, he cannot be taken too seriously. One is his passionate desire to recognize the soviet government in Russia, and the other is his antiquated notion that we ought to conduct our foreign policies to-day as George Washington did, coupled with an interpretation of Washington's admonition against entangling alliances that has no application whatever to the war settlements and the proposals of either the Wilson or Harding-Coolidge administrations.

Mr. Borah's demand that Mr. Hughes explain what has been done at Paris, with the inference that there is something that should not have been done, and that the agreement is more than Mr. Hughes has represented it to be, is amusing. The people are getting tired of this monotonous waving of arms and beating of breasts every time an act is performed in Europe that commends itself to common sense and sane statesmanship.

There cannot be any doubt that the settlement Mr. Hughes has effected in Paris was proper and well calculated to serve our national interests. There can also be no doubt that it involves us in no troubles in Europe that we may wish to avoid. Mr. Borah's excitement will add to the disturbed feeling of the country over the retirement of Mr. Hughes, and the added influence the senator theoretically is to exercise in foreign policy by his chairmanship of the foreign relations committee. It increases the doubt as to just what to expect after Mr. Hughes leaves office.

CHICAGO DESCENDS ON WASHINGTON

Chicago has set out to duplicate Sherman's march to the sea. With a blare of trumpets, flags floating and a million dollar check it has departed through its ministers, plenipotentiaries and warriors, for Washington, where it is to lay siege upon the government for the right to appropriate such water of Lake Michigan as it may desire for power and to float its sewage down the river to the detriment and menace of interior Illinois. Dispatches do not say whether a marine band accompanied the delegation, but we take it it was included. It is a spectacular performance and the employment of cinema methods Chicago is accustomed to in its own mode of living and in its mightier-than-thou professions.

In this expedition Chicago sets itself and its selfish interests above the nation and its interests. It is a simple proposition to say that it has no right to take water for the disposal of sewage at the expense of navigation when its sewage can be disposed of without the use of such water. That is the issue, and it is inconceivable that congress and the government can be buncoed into sacrificing national interests and rights to such claims. It ought to, and we think it will, arouse the lake states and the country at large to resistance that will once and for all put an end to Chicago's raid on lake water and its spurious assertion of superior rights.

MUCOUS COLIC.

Myxoneurosis intestinalis is the ponderous name we doctors sometimes apply to mucous colitis, lest the patient think he knows as much as we do about it. Mucous colic is a better name for it, of course, but somehow I like to emphasize the neurotic feature of the condition, so I mention the term myxoneurosis. Not that I feel any animus toward mucous colic sufferers, as long as they do not try to consult me or cross about their condition. No, I haven't a thing against them, and to prove it I need only to add that according to my understanding of this complaint nearly all of us have a touch of it, as we do tuberculosis and functional amnesia and religion, yet one cannot draw a sharp line between normality and myxoneurosis intestinalis—there is only an undefined borderland between healthy intestinal function and the state known as mucous colitis. For this very reason, you will readily agree if you are fairly well, we must be exceedingly careful to permit no symptoms of mucous colitis to sneak in here. This will be no hardship to those who already are myxoneurotic, and there are plenty of gilded charlatans holding forth in the more essential pages of the more unessential magazines to accommodate those who wish to work, then let me say first that without any reference to or respect for the twiddle twaddle about "overwork," nervous strain and the "high tension" of life in our world, we ordinary dubs are equipped with two nervous systems, namely, the sympathetic and the autonomic, which are antagonistic in their action—the sympathetic drives; the autonomic restrains, inhibits or steadies. When the two are well balanced, as in health, everything is serene and smooth running, so free from disturbance or friction of any kind that we're quite unconscious of our internal machinery and quite unconscious of self. But when the perfect balance between the sympathetic and autonomic portions of the nervous mechanism becomes disarranged—and this is nothing whatever to do with the condition of the spine or the spinal cord or the spinal nerves—why, we have a wide variety of symptoms to occupy our attention. I say the great sympathetic and autonomic nervous systems are independent of the spinal nervous system. This is another thing about which the average layman is much misinformed. The control of the heart, the lungs, the stomach, the whole digestive system, the intestine, the kidneys, the reproductive system, the circulation, the hearing, the vision, the speech, etc., is under the sympathetic and autonomic nervous system which have no particular connection with the spinal cord or the spinal nerves. Nor have the vital organs and functions any particular connection with the cerebrum or the conscious brain; the breathing, digestion, circulation, kidney function and elimination will go on quite as well without consciousness as in the conscious state. The sympathetic and autonomic nervous control cannot be influenced, or regulated or adjusted through the spinal nervous system, as a mere matter of elementary physiology—one of the practical subjects not included in the common school curriculum.

In the myxoneurotic state (the state of the individual with mucous colitis) there is generally a preponderance of autonomic nervous action over the sympathetic, and this is known to physicians at the vagotonic state or vagotonia, another name for the autonomic nervous system being the vagus. Now vagotonia is very interesting, if you've got it and as it comes within the borderland I have already referred to I'm going to take a chance and describe it in some detail in our next talk on this subject.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Is it injurious to live in a basement? We have a basement kitchen, and I have been told that one will get rheumatism. As I spend many hours every day in the kitchen, cooking, washing, ironing and sewing, I am worried. (T. J. A.)

Answer.—Maybe Ben is trying to buy your place at a bargain. Rest assured, it is perfectly healthful to live in the basement. Of course, if you are so credulous as to believe that dampness has anything to do with diseases conditions which easy-going old folks call "rheumatism," and if your basement seems damp, you had better let Ben have the place on his own terms and find an attic to live in. Attempts were being made to unseat him because of his militant defense of Normalism. Newspaper reports displayed pictures of wild scenes. A novel method of raising money took place that afternoon at Lawrence university. The privilege of taking girls to certain entertainments was to be auctioned off to the highest bidder. ## THE ONLY SAFE ROUTE TO A COMFORTABLE FUTURE

Elephant Eats 23 Hours Daily

(Burr Gen. William Mitchell, in The National Geographic Magazine.)

There are many mysteries and superstitions about an elephant. The mahouts, or drivers, have a special elephant language. All sorts of luck marks are looked for on them, such as the number of hairs in their tails and the color and position of their toenails. They may be very fierce on occasion and many are doped with opium at the sales, so as to deceive their intended purchasers.

An elephant has about the same length of life as a human being, so that a mahout may remain with one animal all his life. It eats about 23 out of 24 hours and one or more men are employed solely for the purpose of keeping it in food. Piles of grass and boughs of trees, besides grain and baked pancakes, comprise the diet.

Whenever the animal approaches water it fills its trunk and conveys the liquid to its stomach. If it comes hot, the water is regurgitated and sprayed over its back, giving the rider an unlooked-for shower bath.

Whenever the ground seems marshy or a side hill slippery, the elephant feels its way along with its trunk, so as not to lose its footing. It is a serious thing for a great animal weighing several tons to be come mired in a bog.

Every elephant has a gait of its own both as to speed and ease of riding. In spite of its enormous bulk, and animal can go through the roughest country carrying loads up to 1,000 pounds.

Q. How great a distribution had the Victory Medal by Fraser had? C. G. D.

A. It is said that next to the "Duff-Duff nickel," the Victory Medal has had the most wholesome distribution of any coin of recent times.

Q. How does a person feel after a radium treatment? M. K.

A. The Public Health Service says that the average individual after a radium treatment experiences no sensation whatever.

Q. When and where did the Erie Railroad first run? G. F.

A. It was first chartered in 1832 and ran from New York City to Erie, Pennsylvania.

Q. Is there a lawful manner of preventing structures in mapped streets before the streets are legally opened? W. E.

A. The proposed new charter of the city of Greater New York provides a method that is said to be lawful. The building commissioner can not grant a permit to build in the bed of an unopened street. However, the applicant may apply to the board of appeals, which has power to grant a permit with conditions that will limit the proposed structure to a comparatively inexpensive sort and yet assure a fair return on the investment. In Massachusetts legislation is being sought empowering municipalities to condemn an easement in favor of the public over the bed of unopened streets, preventing structures pending opening of such streets.

Q. C. the measurement of an atom be taken? K. D.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that an atom can be measured directly. Its weight must be calculated from various physical and chemical laws.

Machines for making mechanical music have been known since the invention of clocks, but real music boxes were not introduced until after 1750.

Home Heating Was Problem Of Early Days

(Dr. Arthur Selwyn Brown, in New York Herald-Tribune)
House warming is as art as old as history. Man was not favored by nature with a coat of fur. He was born very frail. We have had to clothe ourselves to meet all climatic changes that have occurred. And we have had to design our buildings to meet these great variations in the climate.

Primitive man lived in caves and rude tents. When the weather became cold he simply lighted a log fire. This did not afford a comfortable heat, but it protected the people's health. Later on, when tents were invented and used for dwellings, a more elaborate and effective means for warming was devised. This was an iron brazier or charcoal grate.

The Egyptians were as expert in building furnaces as we are today. Willow charcoal was the principal fuel they used. Their furnaces were all small and designed to be as economical in fuel as possible.

In the tomb of Antefoser, vizier of Sesotris I, one of the great pharaohs of ancient Egypt, found at Thebes in 1816-17, there are two drawings showing how the Egyptians warmed their rooms. One picture shows butchers slaughtering a bull, carving it into parts like those displayed in a modern butcher's shop and the manner in which the meat was cooked.

The meat was held in a frame by spikes and hung in front of a charcoal grate, to which bellows were attached. This cooking appliance resembled a modern roaster used for the cooking of game and poultry.

Another part of the picture shows a bold outline of a warming furnace used for a multitude of purposes. It is an iron or brick circular furnace with iron banded air spaces with a flame of coal shape. This type of furnace was used in the industries and for warming buildings. It was a portable stove and was usually operated by a bellows worked by hand.

Many Egyptians in ancient times were in the habit of traveling, and this led to a large amount of tent cooking just as the Arabs and Persians do today. They had a charcoal grate, in which they cooked in the daytime and took into their tents in winter nights to yield warmth.

The Athenians and Greeks, as may be conjectured after reading a description of the public baths in Pompeii, were almost as advanced in steam heating and plumbing as we are today. They attained the same heating comforts in their buildings by almost the same means used in our time. They were familiar with hot air, hot water and steam heating and used each method.

Shortly after the Norman conquest of England the old hall began to be displaced by private dwellings. All of these buildings were heated by open fireplaces in which logs were burned. Low fires were the favorite means of warming houses in Europe until the end of the eighteenth century, when in Great Britain, coal grates were invented.

The modern method of heating buildings by steam, or hot air, or water, are refinements introduced in the last 30 years.

Elephant Eats 23 Hours Daily

(Burr Gen. William Mitchell, in The National Geographic Magazine.)

There are many mysteries and superstitions about an elephant. The mahouts, or drivers, have a special elephant language. All sorts of luck marks are looked for on them, such as the number of hairs in their tails and the color and position of their toenails. They may be very fierce on occasion and many are doped with opium at the sales, so as to deceive their intended purchasers.

An elephant has about the same length of life as a human being, so that a mahout may remain with one animal all his life. It eats about 23 out of 24 hours and one or more men are employed solely for the purpose of keeping it in food. Piles of grass and boughs of trees, besides grain and baked pancakes, comprise the diet.

Whenever the animal approaches water it fills its trunk and conveys the liquid to its stomach. If it comes hot, the water is regurgitated and sprayed over its back, giving the rider an unlooked-for shower bath.

Whenever the ground seems marshy or a side hill slippery, the elephant feels its way along with its trunk, so as not to lose its footing. It is a serious thing for a great animal weighing several tons to be come mired in a bog.

Every elephant has a gait of its own both as to speed and ease of riding. In spite of its enormous bulk, and animal can go through the roughest country carrying loads up to 1,000 pounds.

Mrs. S. C. Shannon, speaking as president of Appleton Women's club, expressed her pleasure at the large attendance. On several occasions the board has considered Miss Pearson's plan and Tuesday gave her a vote of appreciation for her willingness to have the system used in Appleton. # KAUKAUNA WILL SEE PASSING SHOW FOR TWO NIGHTS

Boy Scout Musical Revue Pleases Another Audience in Theatre Here

"The Passing Show of 1925, the Boy Scout benefit musical revue, scored another triumph in Fischer's Appleton theatre Tuesday evening. The attendance was much better than the night before but was far short of the support which the attraction warranted. The play is to be produced in Kaukauna on Wednesday and Thursday nights and Kaukauna people who do not avail themselves of the opportunity to attend will be missing one of the big attractions of the year.

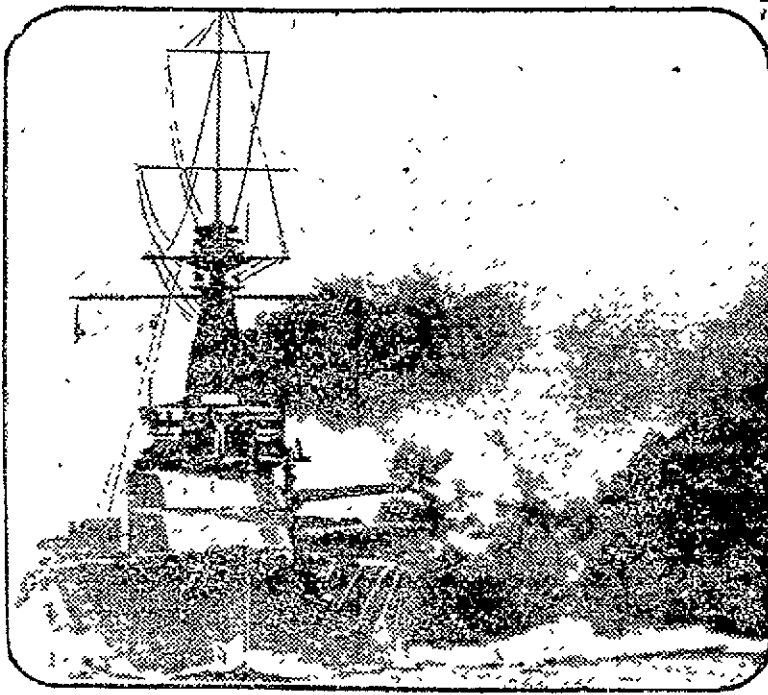

One of the outstanding successes of the cast is a Kaukauna man Harold Perus, who plays the Gem Garrison in the Aud Lang Syne act. Perus is a born comedian and he went through his part with all the abandon of a professional.

On Tuesday night as on Monday night, the "Tea for Two" skit by Miss Ruth McKennan and J. M. Van Rooy was one of the feature attractions. The song and dance number was put on with professional finish and the actors were called back time and time again. Harold McGilgan singing Marchetta in the skit of that name, was in good voice and went over well. Marchetta was a well played skit with the four characters taking their parts to perfection. The Kaukauna and Little Chute girls in the white ballet and Oh! Susanna's dance again pleased the audience. The white ballet is one of the prettiest acts of the program. The Passing Show will be repeated in Kaukauna with the same cast and the same orchestra that played in Appleton.

Speaks to Advertisers
H. A. Schmitz will be the speaker at a meeting of Appleton Advertising club Thursday noon at Hotel Northern. Plans are being made for a large attendance.

Profs Would Cut Meals To Play Volleyball

If racing is the sport of kings, then volleyball may be aptly termed "the sport of pedagogues." For at Lawrence college when the appointed hour arrives algebra, zoology, Greek, and art are abandoned, and the professors engage in a mad rush to the gymnasium to rally around the net. The students have come to recognize as a fallacy the popular theory that professors are absent minded, because not one has ever been a minute late for the volleyball game.

And when the time for class arrives and the instructor does not appear, the surmise is, "He won't be here today, they played volleyball last night."

Although minor cuts, burns, and bruises are borne with stoic philosophy by the mentors Prof. Farley has been missed by his anxious students on three occasions. Prof. Fairfield in trying to ward off the impending form of Dr. Muller's injured arm, and Prof. Clippinger was invalidated with a damaged ankle. Yet each night finds them in the gymnasium. Reports are circulated concerning mysterious lights in the gymnasium late at night and sounds have issued forth as if some one was practicing at some game. The younger athletes disclaim all knowledge. Others have

POULTRY MEN MEET TO PLAN FOR SHOW

An important meeting of members and directors of the Fox River Valley Poultry and Pigeon Stock association will be held at 7:30 Friday evening in the George Loos harness shop, 642 Appleton. This will be one of the last meetings before the opening of the annual poultry show, and all members are expected to be present in view of the arrangements that are to be completed. Entries for the show are being made in large numbers, and indications are that the total will exceed that of last year's show by far. One of the feature exhibits at the poultry show will be a pen of silver black foxes from the Calumet Fox ranch at Sherwood. The show will be held in Armory G from Jan. 23 to Feb. 1.

FISCHER'S APPLETON CROSS WORD PUZZLE SOLUTION

Below is the correct solution of the cross word puzzle which ran in the Monday edition of the Appleton Post-Crescent. The interest taken in this puzzle was highly gratifying and because of the numerous requests we will again in the near future display others for the amusement of our patrons. Due to printer's error definitions for 19 and 20 were omitted. This was taken into consideration in the awarding of prizes.

The greatest number of errors were in the name of a popular movie star, Betty Compson, starring in "The Garden of Weeds" this week at this theatre. Many other errors were made in Horizontal 63 the definition of which is "Reduced to fluid by heat." By 9 o'clock, Tuesday 20 correct solutions had been found among the several hundred letters which had poured into our office. To the first ten persons we are mailing each a pass for two persons as per our Monday ad. In appreciation of their interest we are mailing to the second ten a pass good for one person each. Names follow below.

SABANTINI'S TALE MISSES STANDARD OF "SCARAMOUCHE"

But There Is Much in "Saint Martin's Summer" That Intrigues Reader

BY ELEANOR WING

Why is it that all readers are fascinated by even the most exaggerated tales of danger and romance if they are surrounded with an atmosphere of history and garbed in the costumes of an era other than our own? The mere feeling of the unknown excites unreal episodes and undoubtedly adds a glamor to the most impossible figures in melodrama.

"Saint Martin's Summer," a novel of Rafael Sabatini's earliest period of writing, but only published recently by Houghton Mifflin company, belongs distinctly to the category of novels which fascinate by sheer thrill of event. Character naturally determines episode; but the latter far surpasses the former in brilliance in this last Sabatini story.

M. De Garnache, a brave Parisian gentleman, is sent by his queen to rescue a young girl, Valerie, from the unscrupulous clutches of the Marquis of Condillac, who is striving to marry her off to Marius Condillac, her son, for financial reasons. Garnache undertakes the rescue at first unwillingly, and only because he has been commanded by the queen. He is outnumbered by the followers of Condillac and risks his life many times.

His spirit of beguiling aid is gradually transformed into one of admiration of the girl's pluck and finally into love for Valerie herself, and he succeeds in securing her heart as well as her freedom.

The story is by no means as great as "Scaramouche." It has not the epic qualities which endear the latter to its readers. Garnache loses ones respect, because of his violent, uncontrollable temper, and his exaggerated dislike of women. This latter trait he loses as the story progresses however. Consequently, he is not the hero, as Scaramouche was, and he is the less desirable hero of fortune. He is plodding, not scintillating, and of course, his forty years detract from his romantic qualities.

Valerie is strong and proud; and both she and the Marquis of Condillac gain because of their positions opposing one another. Each makes the other more vivid because of the contrast in personalities. Pride always distinguishes Sabatini's women. Just as courage marks his men. And these two qualities are typical of "Saint Martin's Summer."

As in several other novels, a minor character protrudes and dominates the scene in several instances. Although his part in the action is light and unpleasant, so Marius Condillac, the son of the Marquis, is veritably another Dorian Grey, as Oscar Wilde has painted him. His personal beauty, his instinctive love of all things exquisite, and consequently, his love of Valerie, and his refined cruelty, are etched in Sabatini's tale in magic colors. One is fascinated, and yet repelled by Marius' magnetism, just as Valerie was. And in the last analysis it is his personality which will be longest remembered in connection with the story.

FRENCH GIRL TALE MOST POPULAR HERE

Ann Sedgwick's Story Continues to Be in Greatest Demand

"The Little French Girl" by Anne Douglas Sedgwick continues to be the most popular book at Appleton Public Library. It promises to be in demand indefinitely.

Other books that people have wanted to read are "The White Monkey" by John Galsworthy, "East of the Sun" by George Barr McCutcheon and "The Red Sea Beggars" by Basil Woon. Woon's biography of the great actress is in great demand and is said to contain many anecdotes that heretofore have been untold.

Lovers of drama have asked for the collection of plays compiled by Burns Mantle eminent critic. The book is entitled "The Best Plays of 1923-24."

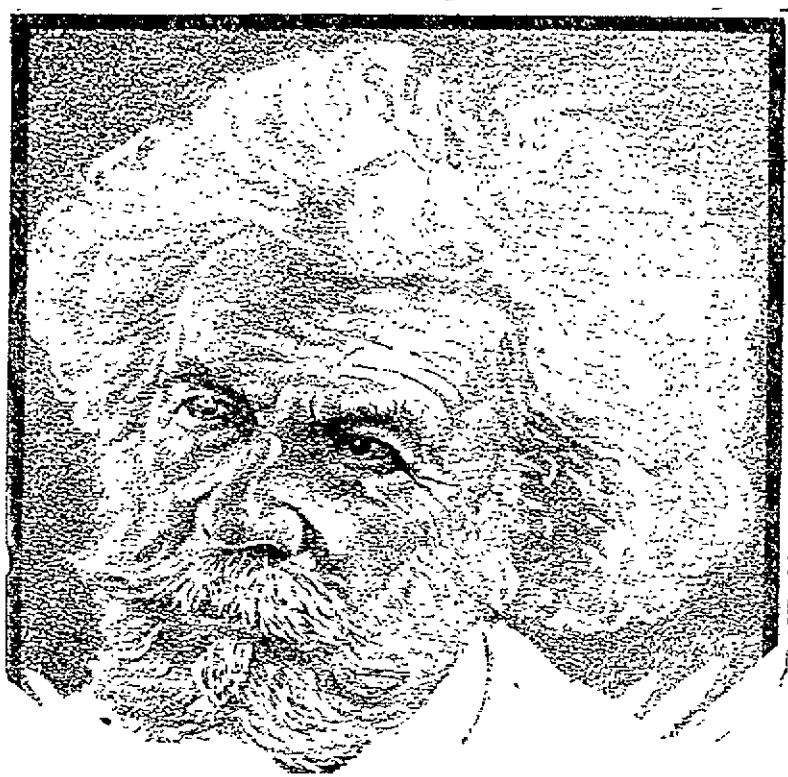

In the children's department most popular were stories of Colonial life, including "Everyday Life in the Colonies" by Gertrude Stone and Grace Pickett and "Boys and Girls of Colonial Days" by Carolyn Balley. There also has been a heavy demand for all information about cotton.

One of the newer books that has been extremely popular is "The Slave Ship" by Mary Johnston, author of "1492," "Cromwell," and "To Have and To Hold," as well as numerous other books. The story deals with life in Colonial Virginia, and the eighteenth century slave trade, especially the transporting of slaves to America.

Unknown Worlds Are Vast, Says Scientist

CAMILLE FLAMMARION

The long-awaited book on spiritualism by the great Frenchman, Camille Flammarion, at last comes from the Appleton press.

Flammarion's sense of justice never has been more pronounced than in "Haunted Houses," the title of his latest contribution to the world of psychic letters. The French astronomer appeals nay pleads, for an open mind by intelligent people.

"The Unknown world is vast and more important than the known," writes Flammarion. He is as harsh in his judgment of people who ridicule spiritualism without at least trying to understand, as he is toward the simpletons and the credulous who have no critical minds and who make a blind faith of spiritualism.

The book is crammed with "experiences," claimed to be manifestations of the dead. The author doesn't attempt to prove a case. He merely recites hundreds of these "experiences," and then asks: If these are not manifestations of the psychic world, what are they? Certainly, he claims they cannot be accounted for by any ordinary physical cause.

He tells of one told him by an engineer. The engineer employed a youth named Robert in his Scottish factory. There was a ball at the factory, but Robert, who didn't dance, served the refreshment stall. Several days later, in London, the engineer dreamt he was sitting at his desk with an unknown person. Robert approached him. The engineer reproached Robert for interrupting, but Robert persisted. He then told him that he had been accused of something, but he wanted his employer to know he didn't do it. When the engineer asked what it was Robert replied: "You will know soon."

He awoke, and soon his wife came running in his room crying: "Oh, James, a dreadful thing has happened at the workmen's hall. Robert committed suicide."

The engineer replied with an air of certainty, "No, he did not kill himself."

"How do you know?"
"He just told me."

It was proved later that Robert had not committed suicide.

Is Flammarion already converted to spiritualism? And if so, are his words of one biased? This juror is inclined to believe the Frenchman when he says he merely is seeking after the truth, and that as yet no one has been able to explain satisfactorily the many weird psychic happenings.

Put your car to the keyhole of the future.

That modern day Oracle—Science—is speaking.
—It is talk of a time when there will be no night: when all 24 hours will be light as day. Agriculture will become obsolete: cities will become self-sufficient; men will travel at speeds approaching a fractional part of a second; children will be born from bottles and vats in a laboratory; a few carefully selected parents will be made progenitors of an entire generation. Social and industrial structures as they now exist will be shaken to the very foundations.

From no star-gazing mystic do these prognostications come. They are foreseen by so eminent a scientist as J. E. S. Haldane, Cambridge University, England, and are forecast under his name in an amazing little volume "Daedalus, or Science and the Future" (Dutton). As a companion volume appears "Fears, the Future of Science," by Bertrand Russell who sees science as a sinister influence.

Everyone enjoys a slight dose of prediction, but here is one that would seem staggering had not most humans lived to see amazing things come to pass.

Among the things the future holds, as discussed by Prof. Haldane are such intriguing subjects as the end of disease through progress in medical science; death will become a psychological event to be looked upon the same as sleep; the appearances of new stimulants such as acid goddium phosphate already in use in Germany and becoming as generally used as alcohol, tobacco or coffee; the constant rise of biological invention until it becomes the basis of a new ethical cult.

The little volume is filled with such haunting paragraphs as this: "The abolition of disease will make death a physiological event. Like sleep. A generation that has lived together will die together."

If you would know more about your president, read "Calvin Coolidge" (Putnam), by M. F. Hennessy. The book starts properly with the president's birth and carries the reader up to the present moment.

Even if you aren't a Republican, it would be well to refresh your memory and the impression it leaves is lasting.

CHILDREN GET HOT DISH FOR PENNY

Sixty children are being served with one hot dish each noon in the Fourth District school, in addition to the lunches which each child takes from home. So many children come from great distances, leaving home early in the morning, and carrying only a cold lunch with them for their midday meal, that Frank Younger, principal, has inaugurated this hot lunch to supplement the box of cold food brought from home. Cocoa, soup, macaroni and cheese, baked beans, escalloped potatoes, and other warm dishes are served for a penny a day.

Members of the Home Economics department of the school under the supervision of Miss Mary Kozlik, are doing the cooking. Girls in the seventh and eighth grades who are having instruction in cooking, find that they are getting splendid training in serving a large number of persons.

The cost of the hot food will probably exceed the penny a day payment but Mr. Younger feels that the expense is not really the first consideration, since the children really need the midday meal in order to be fit for their afternoon work. Parents probably will help out by sending vegetables and soups to add to the supplies.

Gossip About Book People

POETRY REQUIRED
The New Spoon River by Edgar Lee Masters (Boni & Liveright) has been listed by Yale College among the compulsory reading books in the Freshman year.

O'Brien, who has just returned from a trip through the United States which took him to the middle west and to California, Jonathan Cape as publishing Illana in England. Another of Mr. Bercovici's works, Murdo, has been accepted for publication in Swedish.

VIVID DESCRIPTION
Unknown Surrey is the title of a new book written and illustrated by Donald Maxwell, the eminent British painter, and dealing with out-of-the-way corners of this beautiful English county. It is the third of a series published in this country by Putnam's which already includes Unknown Kent and Unknown Sussex.

American literature, got lost in the vague shadowland of mysticism and spoiled a capital story teller by becoming an indifferent mystic. In time he seems to have lost the power to tell a story effectively and although he lived some 30 or 40 years after his great books were published he lived a life of literary sterility and had been forgotten for years at the time of his death, only to be rediscovered a few years ago after 75 years of neglect. But he was rediscovered by this generation not for his mystical work but because he had written a few stories straight out of life before he went wrong.

Will Levington Comfort has one curious distinction. He wrote his autobiography at the early age of 35. There are probably few who have had the courage to do that. He called it "Midstream" and it is a capital narrative. I wonder whether that book does not tell all that is worth telling about the real work of Will Levington Comfort even if he should live to be 80?

APPLETON THEATER

Appleton Theater goers are promised a highly entertaining program this week Thursday for three days. Leading the vaudeville bill are a top-notch trio, Miller Gordon & Welch. They can be truly called among the best if not the best singing trio on the vaudeville circuit today. Miss Crystal Welch was formerly a concert soloist and has wonderful range and clearness. She sings Mile. Galli Curci's famous selections using a phonograph record of the prima donna famous selections to show a comparison of their voices. Then that famous chaser of the blues, Mr. Will Kramer will present a few moments of hilarity to be followed by The Florence Gale Quartet, a quartet of girl singers, dancers, violinists and saxophone artists. The feature picture will be Betty Compson's latest filmed just prior to her marriage to her director, James Cruze, who produced "The Covered Wagon." The supporting cast includes Rockcliffe Fellowes, Warner, Baxter, Charles Clegg, King Zany, William Austin, Lucille Thorndike, William Turner, Lillian Tushman, and Al St. John. "The Garden of Weeds" is a magnificent country estate maintained by the wealthy Mr. Flagg, who delights in having many beauties from the various theaters about him, and usually does. Betty Compson as Dorothy is about to graduate into a leading role in a show Flagg is producing. He induces her to pay a visit to his "Garden of Weeds" where she discovers his true character and leaves to marry Baxter, a man of wealth and fine character whom she meets at this time. Later Flagg manages an invitation to their home and tortures her by valled references to her past. To his surprise she decides upon a bold course and blurs out the truth. A photograph that will sweep her emotions before it.

WIDE ATMOSPHERE IN "HOW WOMEN LOVE"

There is a wide range of atmosphere in "How Women Love." Betty Blythe's latest picture, which comes to the New Bijou Theatre to day and Thursday. The action in the picture takes place in the haunts of high society, the opera, and in the studios of Greenwich Village. Add to this an American millionaire, a young prima donna (played by Miss Blythe), a young American composer, a rascally foreign nobleman—and you have the ingredients of what promises to be one of the best pictures of the season.

"How Women Love" details the adventures of Miss Blythe, in her role as Rosa Roma, when she promises a millionaire that she won't fall in love, and promptly falls in love anyway. Her interest in her secret flame, brings her from her wealthy surroundings to his bare home in Bohemia, where he dreams of writing great music, and where she helps him make his dream come true.

"How Women Love" was directed by Kenneth Webb, and adapted by Dorothy Farnum from "The Danger-

SO BIG
There are some delightful touches of unusual comedy in Colleen Moore's new picture, "So Big," at the Elite theater for the last times tonight. Edna Ferber, the novelist, who wrote the story, laid the scenes in the old Dutch colony which settled near Chicago in the latter quarter of the last century, and, through the antics of the stolid old Dutch types, has injected a great quantity of humor into an otherwise serious drama.

In order to extract the most fun out of this side of the play, First National mobilized perhaps the most notable supporting cast which Colleen or any other star ever had. Included is Wallace Beery who, in the role of an old Dutch farmer, has no use for laundries. He wears the same shirt year in and year out.

"So Big" is an adaptation from Edna Ferber's novel of that title, and was directed by Charles Brabin under Earl Hudson's personal supervision.

PREDICTS BADGER POWER PLANTS WILL SERVE WHOLE U. S.

Power Engineer Has Vision of Vast Network of Power Stations

Waterpower of Wisconsin and the northwest will some day serve a large portion of the nation in furnishing the energy for heat, light and transportation, according to the prediction of Harold Almert, Chicago, president of the American Association of Engineers. Mr. Almert is a business economist and consulting engineer.

Hydro-electric stations, like that at Kilauea, will not only serve their own localities, but if linked together would become units of a super water power system. Because of the undeveloped waterpower resources in this state and the northwest, a large amount of the nation's future power reserve may be found here, he declares.

The stations, linked together, would not require the services of an attendant, but could be operated electrically by remote control. Wisconsin streams during the annual flow could produce power at a minimum cost. A station would be installed at every place where there is a drop of ten feet of natural waterfall. The plan was tried out in California during the war and was highly successful, he says.

The peak of power of cities of the United States will be regulated by the sun. The time the electric power is most in demand in Milwaukee is 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Under the plan of the super-system, Detroit and Cleveland would get their full supply an hour ahead of Milwaukee. At 4 o'clock the full force of the nation's electrical reserve could be turned to Milwaukee and other cities in this area. A network of power systems will reduce the cost of electricity to the consumer, Mr. Almert says.

LEARN INTERESTS OF GRADE PUPILS

"Interest" clubs of Second district schools which have been in process of organization for several months will be under way in a short time. Ben J. Rohan, principal, has announced. Greater care has been given the fundamental feature—the discovery of the interest of the child—this year than ever before. The actual, innate desires of each child have been probed and his own ego will be given every possible means of expression in the resulting divisions of study clubs.

The rank each child has made in reading will determine his eligibility for the club of his choice in every case. The doors to the many fields of interest, including forestry, writing, nursing, radio, building and dramatic work need reading for the key to open them, and consequently a normal reading rank is prerequisite to the work.

LUMBERMEN MOVE LOGS WHEN SNOW IS ON GROUND

The early advent of snow and cold weather this winter has greatly expedited the movement of logs, in the section north of here, according to railroad men. Loggers have been enabled to complete their log roads earlier than usual and the snow has permitted skidding to get under way in the woods.

Loading now is as heavy as it was in late January or early February of last year, and the "rush" is expected to be reached the latter part of this month. Forecasts based on loggers' estimates state that the 1925 movement as a whole is expected to be considerably heavier than a year ago.

CAR OWNERS PROMPT IN GETTING NEW LICENSES

The blue and gold license plates are becoming more and more common in automobile traffic in Appleton. While a number of cars still are using last year's license plates, an Appleton man who was visiting in Milwaukee last week says that the ratio of new plates to old ones is greater in Appleton than in the state metropolis. This is in spite of the fact that Milwaukee now has quicker service in rolling the plates than the branch license office has been opened in that city by the secretary of state. Appleton police have not been selling local police permits for automobiles, but they will enforce the sale of them in a week or two.

Wild Game Plentiful In Oneida

A L. Thompson of Seymour, who shot a wildcat in the town of Oneida last week, followed up his work by bringing in the carcass of a wolf at the courthouse Monday. The wolf was shot in the same territory last Wednesday.

Two days after getting the wolf, Mr. Thompson and a hunting companion got on the trail of the mate, but the animal eluded capture. The bounty on the wolf was a little more lucrative than that on the bobcat, the former being $30, the latter $5. The reason for this difference is that wolves are more numerous.

Hunters and trappers are complaining about the quality of the fur of the animals being caught this winter. Although there are many wolves in the county this year, the fur is rather ragged, and not as full and even as the furs of previous winters. The mild winter is blamed for this condition. Nature, it is said, provides for the wild animals by giving them fine fur when the winters are severe.

ARMENIAN GIRLS GIVEN DOWRIES TO MAKE MATCHES

American Relief Workers Encourage Marriages to Repopulate Country

By Associated Press
Alexandropol, Armenia—In order to assist the Armenian state authorities in their efforts to repopulate Armenia American relief workers here who are caring for many thousands of orphans are encouraging the older boys and girls to marry and establish homes. Each girl of marriageable age who signifies her willingness to take a husband is given a full outfit of clothing, a pair of shoes, an outfit of linen and ten dollars in currency as a "dowry" from the Americans. Scores of girls and youths have taken advantage of the Americans' offer and have asked the officials of the Near East Relief, who are in charge of the orphanages, to find them suitable life partners.

For some time past the Armenian government authorities have been alarmed at the rapid decrease, not only in the population of Armenia proper, but in the number of Armenians scattered throughout the world. According to a recent census the present inhabitants of Armenia, which is now under Bolshevik rule, number only 1,100,000. The world population of Armenians, including those in the United States, is estimated at 3,000,000. During the last 15 years, it is stated by government officials, more than a million Armenians perished at the hands of the Turks and as a result of the World War.

While the government is confident that the natural tendency of the Armenians to multiply will be sufficient to offset the great losses in the race caused by massacres, war and famine to offset the great losses in the race it entertains serious doubts regarding the capacity of the country to support more people than now live within its narrow borders. Not only is the country arid and unproductive, but some of the most valuable areas, notably the Karz, Van and Jazira districts, have been taken from Armenia and given to Turkey. For this reason the government, thus far, has found it impossible to find abodes for the 65,000 Armenian refugees now living in Greece. A place outside Armenia, probably in some sparsely-settled section of Russia, is likely, therefore, to be allocated to them by the central government at Moscow.

PARIS SALON SHOWS NEW OILING SYSTEM

By Associated Press
Paris—High speed motors have brought with them the problem of proper oiling, once thought solved. Engines that turn at 4,000 and 5,000 revolutions a minute must be well lubricated. At first the oil film is inadequate, but the friction of high speed soon heats the oil, thinning it so that the lubrication is insufficient and also allowing the passage of gasoline into the crankcase, causing further deterioration.

What Do You Know About Salads and Salad Making

Canned foods lend themselves so readily to successful salad making, that every housekeeper should endeavor to have in reserve a small stock of the fish, fruits and vegetables which are most popular for this form of cookery, for the emergencies which arise in even the most perfectly managed households.

With a bottle or two of prepared salad dressing in addition, she may in the twinkling of an eye add a salad course to her menu and such a salad course, too, as would not be possible were she to rely solely on the green goods available in the market.

But to do this she will need the recipe booklet on canned foods which this bureau has for free distribution. This booklet tells how to prepare 25 salads and 10 different salad dressings.

It is yours for the asking. Just enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

KAUKAUNA MOURNS
DEATH OF EDITOR OF ITS NEWSPAPER

Friends of Rev. John McCoy Unite to Honor His Memory

Kaukauna—The Rev. John McCoy who edited the Kaukauna Times from 1917 to his death Monday night, was one of this city's leading advocates for development of all things of benefit to the community, according to his friends who are paying tribute to his memory. During his residence here he gained a host of friends all of whom have united in paying tribute to him. Following are expressions from a few persons who were Mr. McCoy's personal friends:

W. F. Ashe—John McCoy's going will leave a spot in the hearts of Kaukauna's people that cannot be filled by anyone else. Loveable and loving he was, impatient of pettiness in his friends and always a leader in things that means a better, broader minded Kaukauna. His kindly philosophy and love of companionship endeared him to all of us. And he was my friend.

The Rev. W. P. Hulen—John McCoy was a true friend and brother. One of those characters which grows on you as you know him the better. To me his outstanding characteristic was his unostentatiousness. He did not say much about himself until he was pressed for details. He was a considerably sympathetic brother who was always frank and fair. He was always thinking and working unselfishly to the best interests of the community both by word of mouth and through his editorial columns. It is a privilege to pay this tribute to a deservedly worthy fellow-citizen.

Archib. Crevaire—Kaukauna post of the American legion pays its tribute to Mr. McCoy. As an editor he was interested in legion affairs and gave unlimited space in the paper to national, state and local legion events.

W. W. Clark of Madison, state leader of county agents for this district, was in Appleton Wednesday conferring with Robert A. Amundson, county agricultural agent, on the work in this county.

Pleasant Diet Essential In Prenatal Plan Of Mother

She Should Regulate Life so Child Will Be Strong and Healthy

BY DR. STANLEY GIBSON
Attending Physician, Children's Ward, Wesley Hospital, Chicago

If the baby were able to tell us his troubles, to say for example whether he is too hot or too cold, whether he is suffering from hunger or colic, or cramped by an ill-fitting diaper, the task both of the mother and the baby's doctor would be much easier.

Unfortunately the little fellow manifests his complaints in a language which can be understood only by long study and careful observation. To interpret this language should be the study of every conscientious mother. If she learns to know the baby's needs, interpret his behavior, and recognize without delay the signs of approaching danger, many serious illnesses will be avoided.

Such information will not enable her to omit medical attention for the baby. In fact it is usually the mother who is best informed in the matter of infant care who calls the doctor for seemingly trivial ailments. She has learned that prevention is cheaper and safer than cure.

Mother Should Watch Health

Every expectant mother is anxious that her baby shall be strong and well when it comes into the world. For this reason it is important that her own life be regulated with end in view.

First of all attention should be given to her diet, for the state of nutrition of the mother has a direct bearing upon the nutrition of the baby. Assuming that her diet has previously been a sensible one, there is no reason why any marked change should be made. Least of all should hard and fast rules be given. Individual tastes vary widely so that what is tempting and agreeable to one may be repulsive to another. What is easily digested by one may cause acute distress in another.

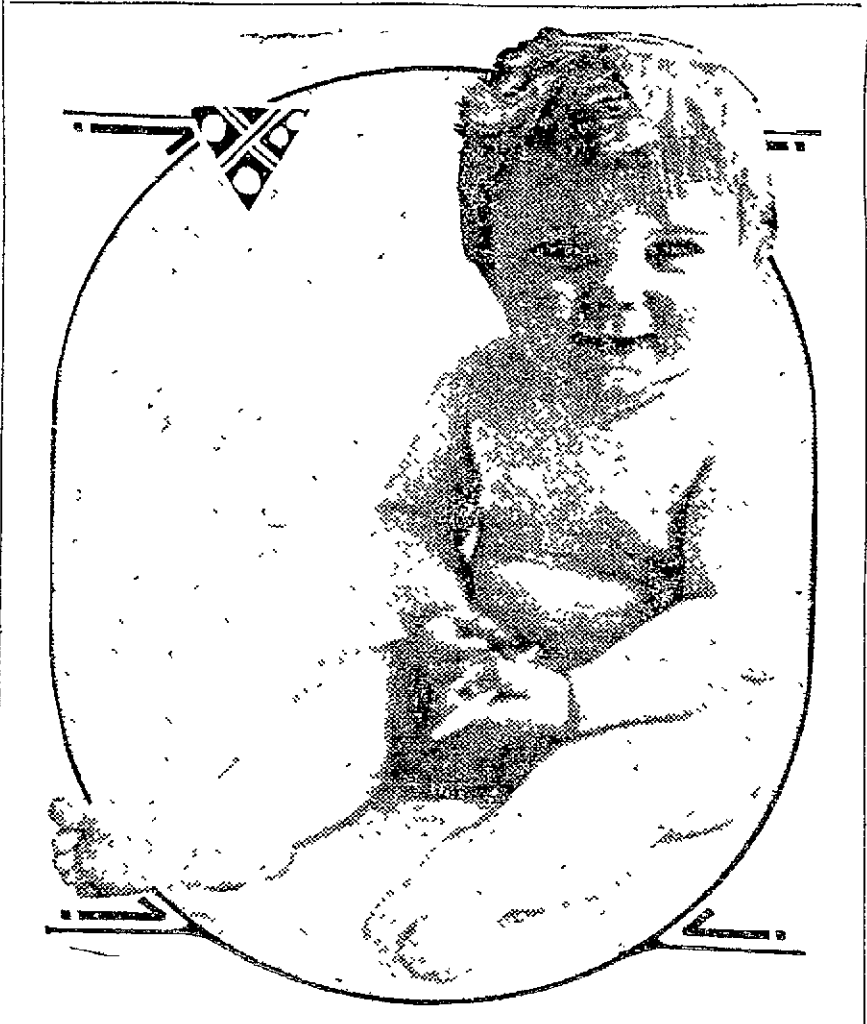

In general it may be said that plain, nutritious, palatable food, which includes relatively little meat, a fair amount of eggs and milk, and an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables is usually the best foods which have been found to produce indigestion should be avoided. If the taking of a full meal causes discomfort, it can usually be overcome by taking smaller amounts at more frequent intervals. The popular notion that the prospective mother must eat for two often results in her overloading her stomach with a resulting indigestion. Before the fifth month there is no need of any increase in the diet and even in the later months the increase should be relatively little. The appetite is usually a safe guide.

EAT FOOD YOU DESIRE

One often hears the remark that an unsatisfied craving for some particular article of food will result in the baby's being marked. This belief is utterly without foundation. If some unusual food is desired it may be taken unless positively harmful. But failing to satisfy the craving will in no way mark or injure the baby.

Liquids should have a prominent place in the diet. During the prenatal period the mother is called upon to eliminate not only her own waste products but those of the baby as well. If these waste materials accumulate in the body they may result not only in minor disturbances but occasionally in serious complications. Because liquids aid in removing these waste products, their importance will be readily appreciated.

From two to three quarts should be taken daily. The greater part should be soup, milk or cocoa. The moderate use of tea and coffee is no more objectionable than at other times.

The Tangle

"I won't have you talking to that fellow!" exclaimed Jack.

"I shook my head at him."

"What's the matter?" said Karl.

"Your voice does not sound at all like you."

"There is nothing the matter except Jack just got in last evening and brought little Jack, and I guess my nerves went back on me, for I faint, but I'm all right now. When you first called up, Jack seemed to think I was not well enough to answer the phone, but when I knew it was you I insisted upon taking your message myself."

"You got my letter, did you?"

"Yes, dear."

There was a smothered exclamation from my husband behind my back.

"It was a very splendid letter, very brave, very self-sacrificing. I haven't had time yet to show it to Jack, but I'm going to."

"Will you tell him that if he wants to see me or even if he wants to see Alice, I shall insist upon her making an explanation to him. Of course, you must remember that Alice was not quite herself. She still is very unsettled and nervous. She must have some kind of excitement all the time, then again she is very melancholy. I am not sure that I will not have to take her out of the country. Poor child, I do not know what she would do if it were not for me, as she has seemed to take a sudden fear that her mother and father do not love her any more and of course she says that you will never care for her again. I called you up to ask if you would write her a little note to let her know you have forgiven her."

"I think it would be better, Karl, if you would insist upon Alice coming home. If she gets over the morbid fear of meeting us and knows that we still care for her, I think everything will be all right. Why don't you try to get her here while Jack is with us, and we'll have a kind of family reunion."

"He'll have to come, pretty sure, don't you think?"

"My business won't let me stay away more than a day. I'm going back not later than tomorrow night."

I was in a quandary. Ruth I didn't know how to finish my conversation with Karl with Jack standing there. I didn't want him to know that my husband was still angry with me, and I knew that Karl would want me to make some explanation.

Karl happily said: "Here comes Alice. I do not think we would better talk any more. She has become very suspicious of everything I do."

"Goodbye then, I'll answer your letter tomorrow."

"I'll say you won't," again came the ugly voice behind me.

Running off with a jerk I turned and faced my husband.

"I'll say I will. I'm tired of your sudden tempers. John, I am going to be a free born white woman from now on."

"Then I think I would better say goodbye and return," came in cold, cutting accents.

"You can do quite as you please. I have made all the concessions possible."

Fate intervened, however. Mother came in and said to Jack:

"Jack, your father wants to see you."

Without a look backward, he strode away.

Adventures of The Twins

The Twins Visit Santa Claus

Nancy got all the toys and dolls cleaned up that Snitcher Snatch had dilted with the soot.

And the Toy Maker said he was ever and ever so much obliged.

"Goblins will be goblins," he said.

"And Snitcher Snatch is no worse than the rest, I suppose. But he certainly is an awful nuisance. Here it is almost Christmas and I'm sure Santa Claus will wonder what I have done with his toys. He must be tired waiting so long."

"Can't we help?" said Nick, quickly.

"We haven't anything else to do and Johnny Sweep has his magic broom right here."

The Toy Maker struck his hands together. "The very thing," he cried. "I've been wondering and wondering how I could get Santa Claus' toys to him. Can you take one bag to the North Pole right away?"

"We sure can," said Johnny Sweep. "We can tie the bag right on my broom. It's magic, you know."

"I certainly am much obliged," said the Toy Maker. "When can you start?"

"Right now," said Johnny Sweep. "You don't say so?" said the Toy Maker. "Well the bag is all ready, will you please help me to pack it?"

"We sure will," said Johnny Sweep obligingly.

And Nancy and Nick said the same thing.

They put in skates and sleds and horns and drums and woolly lambs and doll babies and soldiers and books and mechanical toys and jump jacks and blocks and candy and so many things I can't remember them all.

The Twins and Johnny Sweep worked hard, and finally the great bag of toys was tied tightly to Johnny Sweep's broom.

"Goodbye," said the Toy Maker. "I hope you'll get to the North Pole all right. Give Santa Claus my love and tell him I hope he'll have enough toys to go around. I'll leave some extra ones on my roof and he can get them as he drives past in his sleigh."

"We will," called the Twins as they rode away. "We'll tell him everything."

They rode and rode and rode, over mountains and lakes and cities and fields until they began to think they would never get there.

But by and by they came to Santa's house.

Mrs. Claus answered the door.

"Mister Claus has just gone out to catch his reindeer," she said. "He has his sleigh all ready. It's been newly painted and everything. All he has to do is to hitch up and get started."

"We're glad we are in time," said Nick. "The Toy Maker was afraid he wouldn't have enough toys so he sent some more."

Mrs. Claus gave them some hot soup after their ride and just then Santa Claus came puffing in.

"Well, well, well," he cried when he saw them. "If it isn't Nancy and Nick! Merry Christmas, my dears!"

Woman Is Still Fond Of Caveman

BY CYNTHIA GREY

Even though she has gained her right to vote to knickers, and to short hair a woman is no different than she was back in the apple orchard in Eden.

Still she argues with her Adam, hoping that he'll down her in the end.

As always she displeases him by spending his money on clothes worn to please him.

And like a cavewoman in hearing his snap, she glories in his courage when she takes him in the dead end, not to get up and see what the NOISE is.

QUESTIONS—ANSWERS

Dear Miss Grey: I am engaged to a man who is not making enough to be married for at least a year. He attempts to be quite liberal in his speech and actions. I am afraid that he won't respect me after we're married. He says I don't trust him. I do—Unhappy.

The point is not whether your sweetheart will respect you after you're married but whether he'll marry you at all, if you permit liberties now. The chances are that he will not respect you after the engagement ring and the wedding band.

Dear Miss Grey: I have an old fur coat. How could I have it remodeled? It's worn in several places—Vogue.

It could be combined with a heavy coat to make a full-length coat. And if there is enough of the fur that is good it could be made into a short jacket.

"They Say" Are Words Fraught With Mischief

"They say—"

Two tiny mice.

But they have made more mischief than any others in any language from English to Esperanto.

For they are the smoke screen behind which the scandal-monger hides when she tells her gossip stories.

I say "she" from habit for women are usually credited with being the gossips. As a matter of fact, just as many wicked stories have their origin with men as with women.

One of the most famous scandals this United States has ever known swept over it a few years ago. It concerned one of our greatest presidents and a woman who had been a very good friend of his wife.

The tale, soiled but spicy, started with men—politicians who had but what Richard Kipling calls a "nate tight, iron-bound lie." The story could not be traced to anyone. It had started with "They Say."

Not that men have cornered the gossip market. Not at all. There are countless women who haven't a ounce of malice in their hearts, but whose tongues are as long in the middle and wag at both ends.

These are the most dangerous type of gossips. They tell a bit of scandal for the joy of telling. They love the look of interest in the face of their listener and the dramatic effect of the climax.

"Don't you ever tell who told you," they will say and truly, usually, they to the next good listener leaving behind them enough conversational gin powder to blow up many a reputation.

We all love to hear gossip. The woman who walks in at an afternoon tea with a thrilling story about Lure, June or Jean holds the attention of every other woman within ear shot. The story may be true, but all truth is not beauty. Much of it would be better left unsaid.

As well might a sunbird pipe his song to the desert sands as the loyal friend who defends the person under discussion. For there is something perverse in all of us that relishes to believe evil things of one another.

A woman I know is living in loneliness in California and the husband whom she adores is in New York. They are separated by the width of a continent because of an anonymous "horror pen" letter which some enigmatically gossip sent to the wife.

Too proud to explain as most women are when it comes to personal life, she is waiting for his wife to come to her senses and come home.

The most famous writer of poison letters was ever lived was Sheridan, the man who wrote "The School of Scandal," the great play about gossip.

Sheridan had a love affair with a Lady Fessborough, and after it was over he let half the people in England know about it by unsparing letters. Gallant of him, wasn't it?

But this is the kind of gossip that is almost unheard of. Most talk about people is intended to be harmless. It probably starts that way—as an amusing little anecdote.

But by the time half a dozen people have repeated it and colored it with their imaginations and their sense of drama, it's like a five reel movie—full of thrills and situations.

This would be more comfortable to live in if some of us would occasionally open this page in the Daily Mirror and say: "A word (tiny spoken) is like apples of gold in pictures of silver."

Live In Your Own Home—Not Just A House!

No matter how cozy the place in which you live may be, it's hard for you to regard it as your real home unless you actually own it. For the renter, under one roof one year and probably another roof the next, never is the master of his own dwelling.

The home-owner is secure. His rent can not be raised. He can not be ordered to vacate. He can make alterations as he sees fit and every improvement adds to the value of his own property. And a stack of cancelled checks, representing payments on a home, is much more satisfying than a bundle of rent receipts.

Today is Own Your Home Day, the fifth day of National Thrift Week. Build or buy your own home even if it does entail sacrifices at the start. The goal is worth the effort.

PLAN STATE VOLLEYBALL TOURNEY HERE APR. 25

Appleton Plans To Make Y.M.C.A. Meet Greatest In History

Preliminary Plans Provide for Sub-committees to Attend to All Details of Annual Event

At a meeting of the state volleyball committee Tuesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. here it was decided to hold the 1925 tournament, scheduled for Appleton, on Saturday, Apr. 25. The committee, consisting of F. E. Schlitz, chairman, John Neller, Fred Agrell, Herman Getchow, C. O. Gochnauer, A. P. Jensen and M. C. Roemer, decided that the tournament should be played on the round robin plan, each team playing every other one twice, two 15 point games to constitute a match. The winner of the greatest number of games will be declared champion and will receive the traveling cup now held by Racine, which won it twice in succession. In case two teams are tied, one extra game will decide the winner.

Fond du Lac Madison Racine, La Crosse, Milwaukee and Appleton played in the 1924 tournament. These cities probably will enter again this year, and in addition Wausau and Eau Claire are prospects. It will be impossible to handle more than six teams in only one gymnasium, however, and unless other arrangements can be made to accommodate eight teams, the six which first respond to the invitation will be entered.

Among other business, the committee appointed sub-committees to plan for the reception of the visiting teams, their entertainment, the provision of funds for the tournament and the banquet which to follow and to supervise the games and see they are played on time. A sub-committee to arrange for rules officials and trophies also was appointed.

Appleton plans to make the tournament here the greatest since the state Y. M. C. A. started it.

YANKS GO SOUTH TO TRAIN MAR. 1

Huggins Willing to Trade Any Man but Ruth for Proper Consideration

New York—The 1925 renewal of the American league club will see the New York Yankees facing the barrier with veteran blood in their veins and their mile manager, Miller Huggins, up. Virtually the same team which faltered in the stretch during the 1924 running will take the track this year, supported by Urban Shocker, recently acquired from St. Louis, Steve O'Neil, former Cleveland and Boston catcher, and the usual amount of bush talent.

Thirty-five players will be taken south, 13 of them pitchers. The men have been ordered to report to the St. Petersburg, Fla. camp on Mar. 1.

"The Yanks had their lesson in 1924," said Huggins. "They were too sure of themselves. But it will be different this year."

Huggins declined to say whether he had any definite trades in mind but he said he would trade any man on his club except Ruth if the proposition was attractive enough.

RIPON MEETS BELOIT IN BASKETBALL TILT

Ripon—Coach Carl Doehling's cagers are working out for the coming clash with Beloit and Milton this week. The Ripon quint meets Beloit on Friday night in a return game with the Milton five the following night. As Milton held Doehling's basketball to a 25 to 20 count at Ripon last month, the Crimson hoopers are looking forward to a real tussle on Saturday.

Although Mill's Blue Devils met defeat at the hands of Coe college last week, the upstarts possess a light and speedy outfit, which should force the Crimson quintet to the limit. The first conference game here will be staged Jan. 30 when Carver invades Ripon.

HOTEL NORTHERNS BOW TO KIMBERLY VETERANS

Hotel Northern of Appleton Tuesday invaded the Kimberly alleys where they dropped three straight games to the Kimberly American Legion legions and lost the match 2728 to 2545. F. Behling of the Legion five rolled 646 for the evening's high score. C. VanAble was high man on the Hotel Northern five with 547.

The scores: H. Behrens 167, 137, 168, 472; N. Brauer 136, 197, 168, 501; A. Jimos 131, 180, 272, 483; C. Van Able 264, 179, 164, 547; Otto Dumke 213, 163, 166, 549; totals 351, 558, 838, 2545.

AMERICAN LEGION Won 3 Lost 0
E. Gehlense 172, 151, 143, 466
Behling 225, 182, 230, 646; M. Lemmers 195, 155, 167, 517; J. Verheien 130, 228, 194, 525; H. Williams 201, 157, 181, 530; totals 932, 898, 902, 2723.

TWAS DIFFERENT THEN
The entire Detroit team stole just an ever 100 sacks in 1924. This was just four more than Col. S. engaged in 1915, his record-breaking year in the pilfering art.

Clearwater, Fla.—Kid Wallace, New Orleans and Jimmy Quinn, N. Y. Weltwright, drew ten rounds.

EAST GREEN BAY INVADERS APPLETON FRIDAY

ORANGE QUINTE POINTS FOR HARD GAME IN ARMORY G

Invaders Plan to Regain Prestige Lost in Defeat at Fond du Lac

East Green Bay Friday evening will try hard to win back its prestige lost last week when Fond du Lac won a last minute victory by a free throw on a technical foul, by defeating Appleton high school in Armory G here. The Orange quintet, undefeated thus far, is determined to keep its slat clean, and the contest is bound to be a hard one. East Green Bay and Appleton are doped as the two strongest teams in the Valley conference this year and judging from the number of veterans on the teams Green Bay has the advantage.

However, Appleton at the beginning of the season was looked upon as one of the least favored quintets, but in spite of the gloomy outlook defeated Shokosh, Oshkosh and Appleton in three successive games. While there still is much room for improvement in Appleton's game, the quintet is doing better than had been expected. Coach Jule Kevin has taken care to keep their three victories from going to the heads of his players, and is keeping them tuned up by daily workouts. He is drilling them on short passing and discourages long shots.

The results of this method were evident in the Oshkosh game here two weeks ago. The Sawdust City cagers shot from all over the floor while Kevin's youngsters waited for close shots, and thereby won the contest.

Appleton's prospects are somewhat better since Heble, one of last year's regulars, became eligible after the first semester. Heble looks good at forward after working out with his mates for the first half of the season, but Kevin plans to start his lineup without the new arrival Friday. However, Heble may be given a chance later in the game, and will be valuable as a replacement.

Fraser and Bowler probably will play forward positions, with Ashman a center and Courtney and Pfeiffer at guards. LAWRENCE YEARLING'S MEET NEENAH CAGERS
Lawrence college freshman basketball team Friday night invades Neenah for its first game of the season. Twenty eight candidates reported to "Jazz" Blackburne when he first issued the call for yearlings cagers, and the size of his string made it difficult to round the men into shape quickly. They have been working out three times a week, but as yet are untried in actual games. Blackburne has not yet selected his team.

Several other games are scheduled after the Neenah contest, among them one with Antigo high school at Antigo on Jan. 30.

NEW YORK—Willie Ritola, the Finnish runner, probably will not face Paavo Nurmi, his countryman, during the balance of the indoor season.

CONTINUE WORK ON NEW SPORTS FIELD

Haul Cinders for Track When Winter Puts End to Other Operations

Working operations still are being carried on to complete the new Lawrence college athletic field. The work of drainage and grading of the track and football field was incomplete last fall, and cinders now are being hauled for the track. The football field will be available for the 1925 season.

When completed it will include a stadium with a seating capacity of 15,000. The site is considered ideal being only three blocks from the campus. The field has an area of 20 acres of which eleven acres are under the stadium forming a natural bowl in the eastern end of the property. Present plans of the college are first to complete the track, football and baseball fields. Plans are being made for tennis courts on the present parking space when the stadium is completed.

Maroon Puckchasers Seek Milwaukee Game

Milwaukee and De Pere puck chasers are prospective opponents of the Appleton hockey team this season, according to an announcement by J. L. Jarvis, new manager and coach of the Galpin-Schiffers Maroons. Jarvis has opened negotiations with these two cities and several others and expects to have matches arranged with them in the near future.

In preparation for games with some of the best teams in the state, the Maroons will practice twice a week henceforth. The days set for workouts are Friday evenings and Sunday mornings. The days set for workouts are Friday evenings and Sunday mornings, and all those who wish to learn the game will be given tryouts.

The Maroons planned a game with Oshkosh here Sunday but owing to the Post-Crescent skating tournament which was held on that day, the match was postponed, and probably will be played off Sunday. The team intends to seek permission of the park commission to use the Jones park rink for match games. They plan to fence off part of the rink for the games, thus leaving the rest of the ice for skaters.

Joe Sharp is captain of the Maroons, succeeding Walter Bell.
